BIOGRAPHY

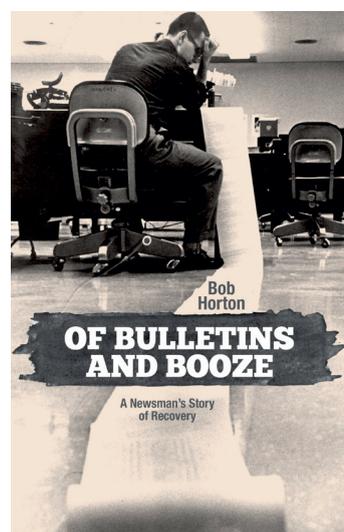

And No Birds Sing

Pauline Leader

Pauline Leader's memoir captures her struggle as a poor, deaf, Jewish woman living in the early twentieth century. From her childhood in a small New England mill town to her early adult life in New York City, her story resonates today as a harrowing yet poetic reflection on identity and perseverance.

Of Bulletins and Booze: A Newsmen's Story of Recovery

Bob Horton

Innate skill and good fortune took Bob Horton from a modest Texas farm upbringing to Washington, DC, where he was thrown into the high-pressure world of the wire service, first as a correspondent for the Associated Press, and later for Reuters news agency. From his early days covering the Dallas murder trial of Jack Ruby, through three colorful decades as a newsmen, Horton often found himself witnessing history in the making. The success Horton enjoyed as a journalist mostly hid the dark side of his career: a gradual descent into alcoholism.

Under a Dark Eye: A Family Story

Sharon Dunn

In this memoir, which is part detective story, Sharon Dunn explores the forces—of family, society, and history—that shaped her parents' inner and, outer lives. She pieces together a compassionate vision of two complex individuals and their fateful marriage, through an approach uniquely her own: a painstaking assembly of research, interpretation, and imagination. Dunn's insights are both poignant and clear-eyed, achingly individual and at the same time archetypal.

CAREGIVING

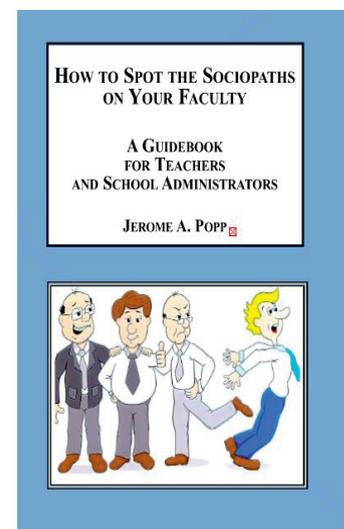

Elder Care Journey: A View from the Front Lines

Laura Katz Olson

There are nearly forty-three million caregivers in the U.S. who will relate to Elder Care Journey with tears, laughter, outrage, and nods of acknowledgment. After reading this story, people coping with the responsibility for frail parents should feel less alone in their struggles. Olson, a researcher of elder care, finds her studies inconveniently interrupted by a real person with ever-increasing needs—her own mother. Thrust into a caregiving role, Olson experiences countless aha moments that shatter earlier convictions. The book also is a window into commercial nursing homes and home care agencies that benefit from taxpayer dollars but often fail to deliver quality care. Readers will gain insights concerning social policy that a purely scholarly book cannot offer.

HISTORY/AMERICAN

The Civil War Diary of Rev. James Sheeran, C.Ss.R.: Chaplain, Confederate, Redemptorist

Edited by Patrick J. Hayes

This exciting Civil War diary of a Redemptorist priest, Rev. James Sheeran, C.Ss.R., who was chaplain to the 14th Louisiana Regiment of the Confederacy, is a national treasure. Irish-born Sheeran (1817-1881) was one of only a few dozen Catholic chaplains commissioned for the Confederacy and one of only two who kept a journal. Highlighting his exploits from August 1, 1862 through April 24, 1865, the journal tells of all the major events of his life in abundant detail: on the battle field, in the hospitals, and among Catholics and Protestants whom he encountered in local towns, on the trains, and in the course of his ministrations. His ideological sympathies clearly rest with the Confederacy. The tone is forthright, even haughty, but captures in sure and steady fashion, both the personality of the man and the events to which he was a witness, especially the major battles. The journal is arguably the most unique narrative of the war written by a chaplain of any denomination and certainly is the most extensive.

FDR on His Houseboat: The Larocco Log, 1924-1926

Edited and annotated by Karen Chase

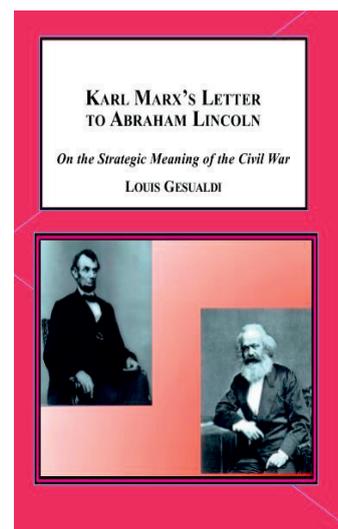

“A fantastic read!” — David B. Roosevelt; “Highly recommended.” — Nathaniel Philbrick. Chase presents and expands upon the daily nautical log FDR kept during his time in the Florida Keys, where he was trying to regain the use of his polio-damaged legs. “What a good idea! The little-known record of one of the least understood periods in the life of Franklin Roosevelt, filled with all the grit and gallantry and good humor with which he faced the disease that would have defeated a less resilient man.” — Geoffrey C. A Promise Fulfilled: The Kitty Anderson Diary and Civil War Texas, 1861

Edited by Nancy Draves

In 2008, Texas historian Nancy Draves happened upon an amazing find up for public auction: the 1861 diary of Kitty Anderson, the daughter of prominent San Antonio resident and vocal Union Army supporter Colonel Charles Anderson. A Promise Fulfilled is an important artifact of Civil War Texas and illuminates the diversity of viewpoints held by Texans on the issues of secession, slavery, and what it truly meant to be a patriot.

Prioritizing Security Sector Reform: A New U.S. Approach

Querine Hanlon and Richard H. Shultz, Jr., editors

Prioritizing Security Sector Reform: A New U.S. Approach argues that security sector reform should be at the core of a new U.S. policy to strengthen the security sector capacity of countries where U.S. interests are at stake. The volume offers case studies to exemplify the context in which a new U.S. approach might be warranted, discusses other countries' experiences with security sector reform policies, and examines how the United States should design and implement a security sector reform policy.

St. Patrick's Day: another day in Dublin

Thomas McGonigle

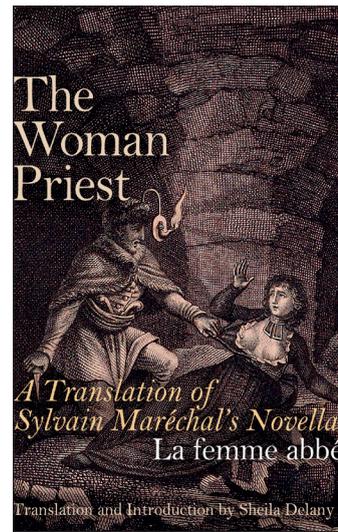

"A retrospective portrait of a young Irish American in Dublin, St. Patrick's Day combines the acute vision of the best fictional memoirs from both sides of the Atlantic Ocean. It has both Edward Dahlberg's acid lucidity and the caustic tone of A Fan's Notes by Frederick Exley. I make mention of these two uncommon American writers because Thomas McGonigle ranges with the lone rangers, the unique writers." — Julián Ríos, author of Larva and The House of Ulysses

The Woman Priest: A Translation of Sylvain Maréchal's Novella, La femme abbé

Sylvain Maréchal.

Sheila Delany, Translator.

In pre-revolutionary Paris, a young woman falls for a handsome young priest. To be near him, she dresses as a man, enters his seminary, and is invited to become a fully ordained Catholic priest—a career forbidden to women then as now. Sylvain Maréchal's epistolary novella offers a biting rebuke to religious institutions and a hypocritical society. First translation of French novella (1801) about passion, social convention, obsession, and despair

Genetically Engineered Crops: Experiences and Prospects

Committee on Genetically Engineered Crops: Past Experience and Future Prospects; Board on Agriculture and Natural Resources; Division on Earth and Life Studies; National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine

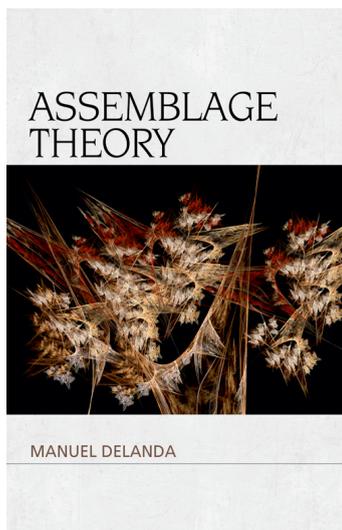

After two decades of Genetically engineered (GE) crops production, some groups and individuals remain critical of the technology based on their concerns about possible adverse effects, while others are concerned that the technology is not reaching its potential to improve human health and the environment. Genetically Engineered Crops examines the purported positive and adverse effects of GE crops and seeks to anticipate what emerging technologies hold for the future. This report indicates where there are uncertainties about the impacts of GE crops and food, and makes recommendations to fill gaps in safety assessments, increase regulatory clarity, and improve innovations in and access to GE technology.

Human Existence and Transcendence

Jean Wahl. Translated and Edited by William C. Hackett. Foreword by Kevin Hart.

William C. Hackett's English translation of Jean Wahl's Existence humaine et transcendance (1944) brings back to life an all-but-forgotten book that provocatively explores the philosophical concept of transcendence. Included in the book are Wahl's remarkable original lecture and the debate that ensued, with significant contributions by Gabriel Marcel and Nicolai Berdyaev, as well as letters submitted on the occasion by Heidegger, Levinas, Jaspers, and other famous figures from that era.

Trudeaumania
Paul Litt

In 1968, Canadians dared to take a chance on a new kind of politician. Pierre Trudeau, a relative newcomer to federal politics, became the leader of the Liberal Party that April. Within 2 months, he had won the federal election. His meteoric rise to power was driven by an explosive mix of passion and fear fueled by media hype. Trudeaumania uncovers what happened when the fabled spirit of the 60s met ambitious Canadian nationalism and the collective excitement generated by the Centennial and Expo 67. This is an engaging narrative with photographs that reflect the rich visual culture of the times.
