ANNOUNCING A NEW SERIES: CALLIGRAMS: WRITINGS FROM AND ON CHINA

New York Review Books is pleased to announce the debut of Calligrams, a new series of writings from and on China. Calligrams will encompass a wide array of poetic masterpieces, classic fictions, thrilling dramas, travel writing, criticism, and histories written by both Chinese and Western writers from antiquity to modern time. The series is made possible by a publishing partnership with Chinese University of Hong Kong Press and is edited by critic and China expert Eliot Weinberger.

THE THREE LEAPS OF WANG LUNG: A CHINESE NOVEL

Alfred Döblin
Translated from the German by C. D. Godwin

Alfred Döblin’s debut work of fiction, the first in Western literature to depict Chinese history in great detail and considered by many the first modern German novel, is a dazzling expressionist epic about imperial court life, outcasts, martial arts, religion, and revolution. “I consider Döblin’s 1915 novel, The Three Leaps of Wang Lung, the best contemporary novel by far. It exhibits an entirely superior, most rare, talent. It is true art.” — Max Horkheimer

CHINESE RHYME-PROSE

Translated from the Chinese and with an introduction by Burton Watson

Burton Watson’s monumental compilation of fu—or, rhyme-prose poetry—is considered one of the most important anthologies of Chinese literature available in English and, until now, has been out of print for decades. The poems, full of abandoned cities, mountainscapes, owls and goddesses, are rendered here in Watson’s masterful English translation for a new generation of readers to enjoy.

THE LITERARY MIND AND THE CARVING OF DRAGONS

Liu Hsieh
Translated from the Chinese and annotated by Vincent Yu-chung Shih

The first comprehensive work of literary criticism in Chinese, The Literary Mind and the Carving of Dragons was written some 1,500 years ago by critic Liu Hsieh whose encyclopedic knowledge of Chinese literature is organized here according to the I Ching. A dazzling, elegant compendium of literary concepts both alien and familiar, Hsieh’s book is indispensable for anyone interested in Chinese literature or in the art of writing itself.

BEIRUT, I LOVE YOU: A MEMOIR

Zena el Khalil

“Part love letter and part memoir, el Khalil’s work employs her artist’s eye and ear to depict Beirut during and after the Israeli attacks on the country’s south and the Lebanese civil war. No simple chronological narration, this is rather a highly personal, impressionistic depiction of events and emotions... The author’s varying tones of passion and detachment heighten the emotional effect.” — Publishers Weekly

RAVAN AND EDDIE

Kiran Nagarkar

Recently selected by The Guardian as one of the ten best novels about Mumbai, Ravan and Eddie is a comic masterpiece about two larger- and truer-than-life characters and their bawdy, Rabelaisian adventures in postcolonial India. It is also a timeless journey of self-discovery, a quest for the meaning of guilt and responsibility, sin and sex, crime and punishment.

THE WATER THEATRE

Lindsay Clarke

“Clarke’s astounding novel, set in England, Africa, and Italy, defies categories. Part political screed, part epic love story with some mystical fantasy added to the soup, his writing style is as crisp and straightforward as his subject matter is complicated and nuanced. This Whitbread Prize–winning author should find an appreciative new audience with this digital incarnation.” — Library Journal

1948

Yoram Kaniuk • Translated from the Hebrew by Anthony Berris

Winner of Israel’s Sapir Prize for Literature, 1948 is a touchingly poignant and hauntingly beautiful memoir that the author himself considers a work of fiction: a recollection of Kaniuk’s experience fighting in Israel’s War of Independence when he was just seventeen years old. It is the tale of a younger man told by his older, wiser self—the self who realizes that wars are senseless, and that he and his friends, young men from good homes forming an offbeat band of brothers, were senseless to see glory in the prospect of dying young.

ON THE EDGE

Markus Werner • Translated from the German by Robert E. Goodwin

Werner’s breathtaking novel is a psychological drama with a masterful, pulse-quickening plot revolving around two seemingly very different men, who have more in common than they know. This meticulously rendered story begins quietly at first, then grabs its reader, refusing to let go. A bestseller in Germany, where reviewers have acclaimed it as a treasure of contemporary German literature, On the Edge has been published in 15 different countries and is now available to American audiences.

ARZEE THE DWARF
Chandrahas Choudhury
In this delightful debut novel, Arzee, a cinema projectionist with “a small frame but a big imagination,” guides readers through the diverse and chaotic streets of Bombay, a terrain Choudhury depicts with a freshness, energy, and humor that vividly brings his hero’s inner and outer worlds to life.”

THE DOVE FLYER
Eli Amir Translated from the Hebrew by Hillel Halkin
Amir’s novel beautifully portrays the birth and death of dreams in tumultuous times as Jews throughout Baghdad are increasingly hounded by eviction, violence, and, most poignantly, face the complete decimation of their storied legacy in Iraq.

SWEET HAVEN
Lakambini Sitoy
Following one mother’s search for answers after her daughter’s scandalous appearance in a pornographic video, Sitoy’s novel is sharp-witted and rich with the tragic-comedy of life in a small, conservative town where bad news travels fast and and people—whether family, neighbors, or strangers—are not who they seem.
